

Sister's Spin

September 4, 2020

One of the readings for a Labor Day Mass may include that of the parable of the talents--you know, the one where the laborers get so many, 5.10. or 1. and are expected to use them and return a "profit" to the employer upon his return. It is a good parable to meditate on as one celebrates Labor Day, especially as people are returning to work or have to find other employment because the job they had is no longer available. All of us have many talents within and it takes some thinking to discover them over a period of time, but even if you have just one, God expects you to use it well and He expects a good return. This long weekend gives us a few extra moments to think about how God has blessed our lives with various talents and to say-THANKS for the wonderful ways we discover and use these gifts.

God bless you with a wonderful three day weekend!
