

Sister's Spin

August 19, 2021

August has been one busy month. Finishing vacations, preparing for school and enduring the “dog days of summer” has found most of us with little free time. The saints of August call us, though, to think about God’s message during these August days. Besides our Blessed Mother’s three feast days, August hosts feast of men who cherished their call from God as priests, men like John Vianney, Maximilian Kolbe, John Eudes, and Bernard, and Pius X. All of these men and others who are celebrated in August loved their priesthood and used their gifts to inspire others to build a better relationship with God. While the priesthood is not the only way to build such a relationship, these men who served the Church remind us that God is still giving the call to many in today’s world, and the need is great for workers in the vineyard. It is good to pray for the priests of today and for a greater response to God’s call from those God is still calling today.
