

Sister's Spin

The "Spin" has been silent, but since this is a new month, it is time to share once again. August is considered the last month of meteorological summer. In other words, summer is almost over--if you are a meteorologist--that is , a weather person. Perhaps, if you are a teacher or a student, it is also almost over. If you are a parent, you may be glad it is almost over because it means your children will be heading back to school. But summer is not really over. One might say it is not over until GOD says it is over.. Have you noticed what God does in summer? Have you taken the time to smell the roses, admire the greenery, enjoy the coolness of the water? Have you rested in the shade of a beautiful tree or enjoyed a family gathering? If not, then you had better get busy because, according to the meteorologists, summer is almost over!

Blessings,
Sister Marcianne
