House cleaning is a chore! One has to gather cleaning supplies--buckets, brooms, mops, bottles of cleaning stuff--decide what needs to be done, especially if it is a big cleaning, and then get oneself to really attack the area one intends to clean. Unless one is a real stickler for cleanliness, house cleaning is a big chore! Perhaps that is why doing a really big cleaning happens only once or twice a year--if that much. Spiritual house cleaning is probably much the same. Perhaps that is what the season of Lent is for--spiritual house cleaning. One has to think about all the inner places that could use a little upgrading, get a few supplies--not a mop or bucket, but maybe a good spiritual book, a talk, Stations of the Cross, a good rosary with meditations, a Mass Schedule--and put these "supplies " in a place where one will see them to remind oneself to use them in the house cleaning process.

Spiritual house cleaning time is right around the corner. Lent begins on February 22nd. Not sure if there are any sales on spiritual house cleaning supplies, but it is important to get them in place and work up one's enthusiasm to attack the task with energy so that by Easter, one's house is ready to welcome that special Guest.
