

Sister's Spin

October 6, 2021

Patience is a virtue I have yet to conquer. For instance, when I moved to these rural areas and began to garden, I would plant the seeds and the next day, I would be out there wondering why nothing was growing yet! It takes soooo long, but then, the rewards of gardening are great, and I guess, worth waiting for. It is the same with this season of Fall. September 22--first day of Fall, but the trees are not in their full color yet. Why don't they hurry up? I want to see the beauty of God's handiwork and I want to see it NOW ! It makes me wonder if God says the same thing about me--"I want to see the beauty of MY Creation in you and I want to see it NOW", but I have to say to God: "Please be patient with me--I'm working on it. It takes a long time for me to become all that You want me to become." Or maybe I need to make the prayer of one of the saints my own--God, give me patience and hurry it up! .
