

Sister's Spin

November 3, 2021

At a time when racism still abounds in our world and human trafficking still enslaves so many, the saint of today, Martin de Porres, can be a force that can assist with these issues. He himself understood the effects of discrimination--not being accepted by his own father, and being of mixed blood, not being accepted by society. He worked with the poor and entered the Dominican Order as a lay brother because he felt unworthy to aspire to priesthood. Yet he did more to aid the poor and many came to him for spiritual advice. In these times, Martin can teach us to be a voice for those who continue to suffer from the current evils of our society. Let us ask him to help us to look at all people as part of God's creation and to treat one another as brothers and sisters in Christ. St. Martin, pray for us!
