

Sister's Spin

December 7, 2021

Eighty years ago today. As I listened to the radio this morning, I heard no reference to what happened on this day, but I shut my radio off pretty early. Eighty years ago today. Have we had so many other and greater crises that now this one fades into the background ? Or is it because there are so few survivors that this day is one for the history books only? Eighty years ago today. Will we remember Pearl Harbor? Will we continue to pray for those who sacrificed if it is just a page in the history books? If we don't remember and pray, what will the next 80 years bring? May God bless all those who died this day and continue to watch over all those who survived and those who continue to protect our freedoms.
